General Observations of Leadership Practice based on Event/Standards/Leadership Displayed:

Blake has been a part of the Advisory committee throughout the entire school year. A goal of this meeting was to start to discuss the revision/addition of an advisory mission statement. We were able to review other school's mission statements and discuss our current advisory description. This activity connects well with the standards of school improvement, professional community, care and support, and mission, vision and core values. We are consistently looking for ways to define the role of an advisor and its purpose. The committee in and of itself allows for us to have a professional community to share thoughts and ideas for future change. The advisory program also offers care and support to our students and connects with our school mission at the same time.

What area(s) of strength did you observe?

Blake offers meaningful insight during these meetings. Blake is an advisor so he brings this firsthand experience to our discussions. I appreciate his feedback and support of our advisory program. As an advisor, he collaborates well with school resources and maintains good relationships with his advisees and families.

What if any recommendations would you make for development?

In this type of setting, I would encourage Blake to feel empowered to jump into conversations with colleagues more often. He has a great deal of pertinent feedback to add, and I value his thoughts/opinions.

Other Comments:

Thank you for being a part of this committee, Blake!
